

ROOSEVELT IS PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

The Hero of San Juan Hill Arrives in Buffalo This Morning, and Promptly Takes the Oath, and Assumes the Office of Chief Executive.

"KING IS DEAD, LONG LIVE THE KING"

President's Body Will Be Left at Buffalo Until Monday--Funeral Services at Washington Wednesday--Burial at Canton--Expressions of Regret.

Buffalo, New York, Sept. 14.—Vice President Roosevelt arrived at one thirty. He was met by a detail of mounted police and a square of signal service men and was at once escorted to the residence of Ansley Wilcox, where he took the oath of office.

McKinley's body will be left here until Monday morning when it will be taken to Washington. It will lie in state there until Wednesday when it will be taken to Canton.

Hay will have charge of the funeral arrangements. The body will probably lie in state in the rotunda of the capitol and the funeral services will doubtless be held under the Gray dome of the national capitol.

Hush About Milburn Home

Buffalo, New York, Sept. 14.—There was a hush to solemnity about the Milburn house early this morning. The shutters were drawn and few signs of life were visible. Sentries paced up and down with solemn tread and a corps of newspaper men who had been noting every incident since the president's assassination were still keeping up a ceaseless vigil.

As the morning hours advanced the crowds began to gather but were kept in check by ropes drawn by the police.

Among the early callers were Mrs. Garrett, widow of the late vice president.

About ten a. m. McKinley's brother-in-law, came out with the cheering news that Mrs. McKinley's condition was good. He said she continued to bear up bravely and showed no signs of a collapse. She now seems reconciled to her great loss. The apprehension that she will break down however, has not been dispelled.

Bullet Was Not Found

At 2:15 o'clock Dr. Wasein announced that an autopsy was held but the bullet was not found. It is officially announced that the immediate cause of death was toxemia of the abdominal cavity.

Funeral Arrangements

Buffalo, New York, Sept. 14.—As soon after Roosevelt's arrival as possible a meeting will be held to discuss the funeral arrangements. At present the idea includes a state funeral at Washington with interment

EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS UNLIKELY

President Roosevelt May Make an Entire Change in Cabinet--The Present Officials Will Resign.

Washington, September 14.—It is not probable that a session of congress will be called by the new president. There appears to be a difference of opinion among good lawyers as to the interpretation of the floor act, passed after the death of President Garfield which act provided for the order of succession by members of the cabinet in case both president and vice president should die.

Some lawyers hold that the vice president in becoming president shall call congress together within twenty days after taking the oath of office. Other lawyers, and among them one member of the supreme court of the United States, interpret the law to mean that an extra session of congress is necessary only when the secretary of state or other cabinet official is called upon to assume the reins of government, the theory being that the death of the president and vice president necessitates a popular election to choose his successor.

SOLID FOOD PROVED TO BE FATAL DOCTORS MADE GRAVE BLUNDER

Digestive Organs of McKinley Were Not Sufficiently Strong to Assimilate the Victuals.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Severe adverse criticism has been received here from prominent physicians from all parts of the country regarding the administration of solid food to President McKinley by the doctors before the relapse came. The president's relapse is admittedly the result of the failure of his digestive organs to assimilate the solid food which he ate yesterday. Important bodily functions became impaired.

The result was the loss of the previous gains that had given the doctors so much hope of the ultimate outcome of the gallant struggle for life. It became absolutely essential to relieve the patient's distress, which was threatening and immediate.

Many physicians have expressed themselves fully on the cause of President McKinley's relapse.

Dr. W. M. H. Thompson said: "The depression of the heart was due to the presence of undigested

BUFFALO IS IN A DESPERATE MOOD THE MOB ONLY NEEDS A LEADER

Buffalo, Sept. 14.—10 a. m.—Buffalo is in a mood for desperate measures. It needs only a leader and a mob will be formed to wreak vengeance upon the author of the nation's sorrow. It will be a disastrous move if it is made—disastrous for the men who now seek to take the law into their own hands, disastrous for Buffalo, and also disastrous for the officers of peace.

Perhaps it is fortunate, but it is nevertheless true that the one object upon which the blow should fall will escape. Czolgosz is not in police headquarters, about which the sullen, threatening crowd is now gathered and is constantly being swelled.

When morning came upon the city every bulletin board in Buffalo was surrounded by a great crowd. These a modern country like the United States."

Sympathy From Edward VII.—London, September 14.—King Edward to Ambassador Choate: "Most truly do I sympathize with you and the whole American nation at the loss of your distinguished and ever to be regretted president." The Stock Exchange unanimously agreed to close in respect of the memory of McKinley.

Kaiser Sends Condolence.—Berlin, September 14.—When the Kaiser heard of McKinley's death he sent a message of condolence to Mrs. McKinley and ordered that all flags on the government building be at half mast. This is a distinguished mark of respect, as never before has the death of a president of this republic received such honorable notice.

Loubet Sends Message of Regret.—Paris, September 14.—President Loubet sent a message of regret to Mrs. McKinley saying: "I grieve with all my heart at the affliction which has wounded you in your dearest affection and which has deprived the great American nation of a president so justly respected and loved."

Pope Burs in Tears.—Rome, September 14.—When the pope received the news of McKinley's death he burst into tears. He then prayed for an hour for the deceased president. He afterwards called his sympathies to the widow.

Anarchists Respect His Memory.—Chicago, September 14.—The hearing of the heinous corpus cases of the anarchists under arrest here postponed until Tuesday at the request of the prisoners out of respect for the president. Fearing that there would be violence when the prisoners were taken into court, scores of additional deputies and policemen were stationed about the room and none but those who had business in court were admitted.

WM. M'KINLEY IS DEAD; PASSES AWAY IN PEACE

President of the United States Succumbs to Wounds Inflicted by the Assassin Czolgosz--Unconscious When He Died at 2:15 This Morning.

SAD FAREWELL OF HUSBAND AND WIFE

Last Words to Those Around His Beside Were, "Thy Will, Not Ours, Be Done"—Last Hours of the President at His Death Bed at Buffalo.

Milburn House, Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 14.—William McKinley, President of the United States, died at 2:15 o'clock this morning. He had been unconscious since 7:50 o'clock last night. He had been sinking rapidly since shortly before 5 o'clock last night, when his condition took an acute turn for the worse. He suffered what seemed almost a complete collapse. The doctors in automobiles, all intent upon getting here before death came.

Announcement Slightly Delayed.—The announcement of the death to the members of the cabinet was made by Webb Hayes, who said: "It is all over."

Mrs. McKinley last saw her husband between 11 and 12. At that time she sat by the bedside holding his hand. The members of the cabinet were admitted to the sickroom singly at that time. The actual death probably occurred about two o'clock, it being understood that Dr. Rixey delayed the announcement momentarily to assure himself. The announcement of the news to those waiting below was postponed until the members of the family had withdrawn. Through Secretary Cortelyou the waiting newspaper men received the notification.

Present When Death Came

Those present at the time of the President's death were: Secretary Cortelyou, Dr. Rixey, Mrs. and Miss Barber and Miss Duncan. He died unattended by a minister of the gospel, but his last words were a humble submission to the will of God in whom he believed. He was reconciled to the cruel fate to which an assassin's bullet had condemned him and faced death in the same spirit of calmness and peace which had marked his long and honorable career.

May Hold an Autopsy

The immediate cause of the President's death is undetermined. His physicians disagree and it will possibly require an autopsy to determine the exact cause. The President's remains will be taken to Washington, and there will be a state funeral. Vice President Roosevelt, who now succeeds to the Presidency, may take the oath of office whenever he happens to hear the news. The cabinet will, of course, resign in a body and President Roosevelt will have an opportunity of forming a new cabinet if he so desires. The rage of the people of Buffalo against the President's assassin, when they learned last night he was dying, was boundless. Thousands surrounded the jail and the entire police force of the city and two regiments of militia were utilized to insure his protection.

President Wished to Die

The President himself before losing consciousness expressed a desire to be allowed to die. The doctors had prolonged life only by the administration of oxygen and he appeared to realize that the battle with death was hopeless. Before 6 o'clock in the evening it was clear to those at the President's bedside that he was dying and preparations were made for the last sad offices of farewell from those who were nearest and dearest to him. The President came out of one period of unconsciousness only to relapse into another.

Cabinet Members in Tears

In this trying period, when the President's mind was partially clear, occurred a series of events of a profoundly touching character. Downstairs, with strained and tear-stained faces, members of the cabinet were grouped in anxious waiting. They knew the end was near and that the time had come when they must see him for the last time on earth. This was about 6 o'clock. One by one they ascended the stairway—Secretary Root, Secretary Hitchcock and Attorney General Knox. Secretary Wilson also was there, but he held back, not wishing to see the President in his last agony. There was only a momentary stay of the cabinet officers at the threshold of the death chamber. Then they withdrew, the tears streaming down their faces and the words of intense grief choking in their throats.

Last Look at His Chief

One of the last to arrive was Attorney General Knox, who reached the house at 9:30. He was permitted to go upstairs to look for the last time upon the face of his chief. Those in the house at this time were Secretaries Hitchcock, Wilson and Root, Senators Fairbanks, Hanna and Burrows, Judge Day, Colonel Herrick, Abner McKinley, the President's brother, and his wife; Dr. and Mrs. Baer, the President's niece and her husband; Mrs. Barber and Mrs. Duncan, the President's admitted early in the evening that he was dying. Respiration became infrequent and labored, his pulse almost ceased to act and his temperature took a sudden and dangerous drop. Oxygen was promptly introduced into the patient's lungs. Saline solutions were injected into his veins to stimulate the action of the heart. The response was distressingly slow. The President's depression grew more and more profound and it was impossible to arouse him.

MRS. MCKINLEY.

With life measured by minutes and hours the doctors notified Secretary Cortelyou to send at once for such of Mr. McKinley's relatives and friends as he deemed ought to be present during his last moments.

Bids Wife Pathetic Good-by.

The physicians rallied him to consciousness and the President asked almost immediately that his wife be brought to him. The doctors fell back into the shadows of the room as Mrs. McKinley came through the doorway. The strong face of the dying man lighted up with a faint smile as their hands were clasped. She sat beside him and held his hand. Despite her physical weakness she bore up bravely under the ordeal. The President in his last period of consciousness, which ended about 7:40, chanted the words of the hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and his last audible conscious words, as taken down by Dr. Mann at the bedside, were: "Good-by, all; good-by. It is God's way. His will be done."

Soon Loses Consciousness.

Then his mind began to wander and soon he completely lost consciousness. His life was prolonged for hours by the administration of oxygen. About 8:30 the administration of oxygen ceased and the pulse grew fainter and fainter. He was sinking gradually, like a child, into the eternal slumber.

By 10 o'clock the pulse could no longer be felt in his extremities and they grew cold. Below stairs the grief-stricken gathering waited sadly for the end. All the evening those who had hastened here fast as steel and steam could carry them continued to arrive. They drove up in carriages at a gallop or were whisked up

PRESIDENT THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR BANQUET AT THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The thirteenth annual banquet given by the Christian Endeavor society of the Presbyterian church last evening was a very pleasant success although the pleasure of the occasion was somewhat overshadowed by the impending national bereavement.

Shortly after six o'clock the invited guests began to assemble in the parlors of the church where cordial greeting awaited every comer. The parlors were handsomely decorated with bunting, great bunches of cut flowers and potted plants and were the scene of pleasant sociability while the guests were assembling.

About seven o'clock the company was ushered down stairs to the dining room which had been arranged most attractively. Beautiful asters were used as the table decorations and the pillars of the room were wound with bunting of the same hues as the flowers. Flowered napkins and fancy white and pink boats for potato chips gave additional dashes of color to the daintily spread tables.

The supper was both dainty and appetizing and it was very prettily served. Especially was this true of the salad course, the salad being served on nasturtium leaves and garnished with the blossoms. The following was the menu:

Menu:
Veal Loaf Bread and Butter
Potato Chips Pickles
Salad Coffee
Salad Wafers

After the supper the Rev. J. T. Henderson took charge of the next part of the evening's program and certainly no better choice of a toastmaster could have been made. His happy introductions were enlivened by humorous stories, sometimes at the expense of the members of his society, and he was applauded as frequently as those who responded to the toasts.

Miss Mable Best, president of the society, read greetings from Miss Hannah Hanson of Chicago, one of the society's charter members.

"Are We Alive?" was the unique subject assigned Miss Grace Kirk and her response was in rhyme and exceptionally clever. She answered the question emphatically in the affirmative, her authority being Dr. Caleb Cobweb of Boston who enabled her to look down on the C. E. societies all over the world and see the work they are doing.

Ralph Grove, the president of the Christian Young People's union, spoke in the interests of that organization. After telling what had been done in the past eight months he spoke of plans for the future which include a rally meeting in October. The object of the organization is a worthy one, it being to stimulate the interest of Christian young people, to increase their mutual acquaintance and to make them more useful in the service of God. It is important that the young people of the various churches should work together and this union should receive the hearty support of every young people's society in the city.

A. E. Matheson, state president of the Wisconsin Endeavor society, was unable to be present at the banquet and the greetings of the state officers were presented in a very pleasing manner by Miss Fanny Jackson, state secretary. The state board is especially interested in Endeavor societies because each one has had a member on the state board very recently. In memory of the late Rev. A. C. Kempton, Miss Jackson said that his plans for the state society so far as he had made them known were being carried out. One of the mottoes of the state society in this state is "Wisconsin builds upon the rock" and the help of every society and every member is needed in building the superstructure.

"Christian Endeavor Enthusiasm" was cleverly toasted by Miss Mary Mcuat, who held that wisely directed enthusiasm would not only promote the interests of Christian Endeavor but of all interests that are truly worthy. A humorous story concluded her toast which won her long continued applause.

W. F. McCaughey talked earnestly and entertainingly of the C. E. Bugbear, which he construed as the pledge. It is a bugbear, because people sign it without the consent of their wills and try to educate their consciences to get out of as much of it as possible. The pledge should not mean a force which compels service, and love is the only thing which will make it the outline of Christian life. Service performed from a sense of duty makes fanatics who have no influence. Love makes earnest, loyal Christians.

After the toasts there was an informal social hour in the church parlors, several delightful piano solos by Miss Evelyn Packer adding much to the evening's pleasure.

Much credit for the success of the banquet is due to the members of the various committees who worked faithfully and untiringly. None deserve more praise than the faithful little waiters who served the supper so promptly and cared for the guests so well. They were the following members of the intermediate society: Bertha Yates, Orville Swift, Jennie Gardner, George Ernst, Agnes Carneau, Wallace Mills, Gertrude Van Beynum, Leslie Harper, Dolly MacLean, Laura Clark, Warren Clark, Roland Airls, Walter Airls, Edwin Mead, Mabel Rustad, Eddie Litz, Max Murray and Mabel Williams.

Rev. Father Stephan Dead Word was received in this city yesterday of the death at Cornwell, Pa., of Rev. Father Monsieur Stephan, whose home is at Washington, D. C. Rev. Father Stephan was connected with the Indian bureau. He had been in Germany the past year and a letter received from him by Janesville relatives, stated that he would be home July first. Since that time nothing had been heard of him until the sad news of his death was received. He leaves one sister, Mrs. Kate Sweltzer, formerly of this city, but now of Chicago, and a brother whose whereabouts is unknown. Mrs. George H. Powers of this city is a niece of the deceased man. No particulars regarding his illness and subsequent death have been received by Janesville relatives.

Struck by an Engine
Last evening Joe Pollard, a saloon keeper of Edgerton, was struck and fatally injured by a St. Paul passenger train, arriving here a few minutes after seven o'clock. Pollard has been attending a series of church meetings this week and was on his way there when struck. The engine struck him in the temple and he was knocked a considerable distance. When picked up he was alive but it is not thought he can recover. He was rather an odd character here, but a good citizen and is well-liked. Mr. Pollard was in Janesville yesterday morning with his brother on business.

TOBACCO NOTES

The harvest of the tobacco crop is now in full blast in all of the growing sections of the state. In many localities growers are securing tobacco will compare favorably with other years in size. The crop has responded quickly after every rain, however light, that has fallen and is making a showing far in excess of what the most sanguine hoped for a few weeks ago. The general rains of this week will prove a great help to the later fields that have just been tilled, and if the frosts hold off two of three weeks, yet here is promise of some good leaf yet to be harvested. The soft weather will also assist in the curing of the early shedded leaf which is now well advanced with the first harvested fields.

What movement there is going on in the purchase of the new crop is still confined to the Vernon county section and even here the first rush out buying is said to have subsided somewhat. The buyers of the American Cigar company as well as several local firms, are still in the field but more moderate methods are pursued. Some contracts are being placed at former quotations, ranging from 10 to 14 cents for bundle delivery. We have no definite estimates as to what proportion of the crop has been lifted, though some dealers familiar with the situation place it at two-thirds of the acreage grown.

The harvest is now well along in most sections but at least from three to four weeks will be necessary to develop and mature all the late fields. Soaking rains that have come this week will hasten the growth of the belated crops.—Edgerton Reporter.

He Owes His Life to the Forethought of a Companion.

While on a camping trip in Webster county, Mr. S. I. Stump, of Norwanton, W. Va., had a severe attack of bloody flux. He says, "I firmly believe that I owe my life to the forethought of one of the company who had taken along a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." Moral—Procure a bottle of this remedy before leaving home. It cannot be obtained when on a hunting, fishing or prospecting trip. Neither can it be obtained while on board the cars or steamship, and at such times and places it is most likely to be needed. The safe way is to have it with you. Thousands of travelers never leave home on a journey without it. For sale by People's Drug Co., and King's pharmacy.

Have you a sense of fullness in the region of your stomach after eating? If so you will be benefited by using Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They also cure belching and sour stomach. They regulate the bowels too. Price, 25 cents. Sold by King's pharmacy and People's Drug Co.

Assassin's Plot Disclosed.

Fort Worth, Tex., Sept. 14.—A plot has been revealed that an attempt was to be made to assassinate State's Attorney Latmore on account of the prosecution of gambling and game exhibitors, nine of whom are now in jail. The attorney was notified that a conspiracy was hatching to kill him. Assistant City Attorney Roy was also informed this morning that his life is in danger.

Pin a Bank Reorganization.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—Six members of the reorganization committee of the failed Seventh National bank of New York are here in consultation with Deputy Comptroller of the Currency Kane. Comptroller Dawes left for Buffalo and nothing will be given out regarding the plans of reorganization until they have been approved or disapproved by him.

Buried Beneath His Engine.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 14.—A Southern switch engine, while running ten miles an hour, jumped the track at a curve under Whitehall street bridge. Conductor Ed. Underwood, riding on the front of the engine, was hurled between the engine and the embankment. The other trainmen escaped unhurt.

Poisoned By Bedbug's Bite.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 14.—J. Viergan, a farm hand near St. Joseph's Ridge, Wis., is dying from the bite of a bedbug, blood-poisoning having set in.

Catarrh

The cause exists in the blood, in what causes inflammation of the mucous membrane.

It is therefore impossible to cure the disease by local applications.

It is positively dangerous to neglect it, because it always affects the stomach and deranges the general health, and is likely to develop into consumption.

Many have been radically and permanently cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It cleanses the blood and has a peculiar alterative and tonic effect. H. Long, California Junction, Iowa, writes: "I had catarrh three years, lost my appetite and could not sleep. My head pained me and I felt bad all over. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and now have a good appetite, sleep well, and have no symptoms of catarrh."

ROOSEVELT IS CALLED

The Colonel Hurries From Adirondacks to Albany.

HAD A HARD NIGHT'S DRIVE.

Reaches Capital at Seven o'Clock and Starts at Once for Buffalo—Will be Sworn in as President of United States.

North Creek, Sept. 14.—Vice President Roosevelt left the lower clubhouse at Tawahus, ten miles from the upper clubhouse, at 1:15 a. m. for this village. He arrived here at 5 a. m. and at once took the special train for Albany, expecting to arrive there about 7 a. m. At Albany another special will be awaiting to convey him over the New York Central road direct to Buffalo.

Albany, Sept. 14.—Vice President Roosevelt, who has been in the Adirondacks at the camp of the Tawahus Club, thirty-five miles from a railroad station reached here this morning.

Dispatches were sent to him by courier, and a special train on which are Supt. Hammond of the Delaware and Hudson railroad and William Loeb, Jr., the private secretary of the Vice President awaited him at North Creek. It was reported last evening that Col. Roosevelt had been found on the top of Mt. Marcy, where he had gone on a hunting trip, by guides who had been sent out early in the day to deliver to him dispatches from Buffalo announcing the change for the worse in President McKinley's condition.

Message by Courier.
Through some misapprehension the messages do not seem to have been delivered to the Vice President. At all events he returned to the Upper Tawahus Clubhouse, ten miles above the lower clubhouse, which is the end of the telephone line. From there he sent a messenger to the lower clubhouse. This messenger had a conversation over the telephone with Mr. Loeb. He was given several messages for Colonel Roosevelt, including those received late yesterday afternoon and early last evening, detailing President McKinley's condition and hurried back to the Vice President. There was a long, hard drive before the Vice President.

The special train was kept in readiness at North Creek to start for Albany as soon as the Vice President reached there.

The Vice President, whenever he is informed of the President's death may be sworn in without delay to fill the office ad vacante. It is not necessary even that a supreme judge should administer the oath; this may be done by a justice of the peace. Vice President Roosevelt left Buffalo confident that the chief magistrate would recover and within six weeks would again be able to direct public affairs.

ROOSEVELT'S COTTAGE AT OYSTER BAY, L. I.

and if not able to entirely direct matters, at least be sufficiently able to give his counsel.

Was Sure of Recovery.

There was no doubt in the Vice President's mind before he left the exposition city that President McKinley would get well, and it is a fact that as soon as he left Buffalo Americans began to breathe easier, feeling that he would not go unless he was sure that there was no danger of a relapse. When he passed through Albany a few days ago, Vice President Roosevelt seemed as happy as could be, and he cheerfully remarked that "all was well and the President was on the high road to recovery." With this belief he started for the camp of the Tawahus Club. In this Adirondack retreat the Vice President had hoped to spend a few restful days, recuperating from the shock and strain resulting from the Buffalo tragedy.

NEWS STARTLES TRADE.

Rumors of President's Death Disturb Prices.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—Quite as disturbing as the news of the assassination a week ago was yesterday's news from Buffalo. Even worse news came in way of rumors from Wall street, where messages for a time repeated a rumor of President McKinley's death.

Wall streets stocks were at a decline of 1 to 6 points, and this naturally unsettled prices here.

From 70% cents last night December wheat sold 70 1/2 and 70 3/4 cents, with later rally to 70 3/4@70 1/2 cents.

Corn was off on first trades from 57 1/2@57 1/2 to 57 and 56 1/2 cents for December. This recovery was to 57 1/2 cents. May corn sold 58 1/2 on break and held at 59.

Oats sold 1/2 cent lower at 35 1/2 December and 37 1/2 May, with rally to 35 1/2 and 37 1/2@37 1/2 cents.

Provisions were lower on first trades. Pork lost 10 cents at $15.70 January and rallied to $15.75. Lard and ribs were 2 1/2 to 5 cents lower. January lard $9.15, ribs $9.07 1/2 and $8.10.

FUSE IS FOUND.

Cleveland Police Find Evidence Against Man Arrested in Chicago.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 14.—In a frame building on Broadway, the Cleveland detectives have discovered evidence which, while not tending to prove the existence of an anarchist plot against President McKinley, will at least serve to hold one of the men who was arrested in Chicago.

As soon as information was received here of the arrest of Edward Wolcizynski, of this city, in Chicago, Sergt. Doran and Detective Schmunk were detailed to search the house in which he lived at 1870 Broadway. They found stored away on top of a cupboard fifty feet of fuse, such as is ordinarily used in the manufacture of dynamite bombs. The information was at once telegraphed to the Chicago authorities.

Wolcizynski, while in this city, was employed as a writer on a Polish newspaper known as the Star.

New York, Sept. 14.—Capt. Titus, chief of detectives of this city, said he had received a dispatch from the chief of police at Berlin giving the same information as that contained in the foregoing dispatch from Berlin. The dispatch described the man as being five feet six inches tall, smooth face, wearing a black sack coat and black Derby hat. Capt. Titus said he had detailed men at all the railroad stations to watch for the man.

Military Projects Colloquies.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 14.—When the bulletins from the Milburn house grew hopeless in tone, preparations were made by the police and military to preserve the public peace and protect the assassin Colloquies. After communication with Superintendent Bull, Colonel Samuel M. Welch ordered out the Sixty-Fifth and Seventy-Fourth regiments of the National Guard. These regiments were assembled at their armories at 8:15 o'clock and stood armed in readiness for any call. Colonel Welch, who commands the Sixty-Fifth regiment, said that he and Colonel Fox of the Seventy-Fourth regiment had agreed on this course.

Vengeance Call Sent Broadcast.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—"If the death of President McKinley is confirmed by 10 o'clock a. m. Sunday we want 10,000 good American citizens to meet us at above-named hour at the Cook county jail, at the Michigan street entrance, to help to hang every anarchist now confined in Cook county jail, and Emma Goldman, wherever she can be found."

CHARLES WEINLAND.

"No. 555 West Monroe street."

JOHN IRVING PEARCE, JR.,

"Sherman House."

EDWARD MYERS.

"No. 248 Dearborn avenue."

This startling appeal was circulated through the city and sent to the newspaper offices last night. The sheriff and police are taking every precaution to prevent trouble at the jail.

Had Scenes in Chicago.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—When the announcement of the President's death was made in newspaper row this morning a vast multitude of men uncovered their heads to the chilly air, repeated the Lord's prayer, and sang "Nearer, My God, To Thee" and "America." Three cheers were given for the departed President and the incoming one. A preacher offered prayer and there were calls for lynching all anarchists.

HAY REMAINS AT HIS POST.

Chinese Minister Calls and Expresses His Deep Concern.

Washington, Sept. 14.—Afternoon reports from the President's bedside came upon Washington with almost as great a shock as was caused by the first report of the murderous attack upon him. Secretary Hay was among those first notified of the turn for the worse in the early morning, and he considered for a moment whether or not he should hasten to Buffalo. He decided not to do so, but to remain in guard at the national capital ready to meet here any emergency that might arise. This decision was in line with an understanding reached between the cabinet members in Buffalo when it was determined that the Secretary of State should await a summons from his colleagues before returning to Buffalo.

Therefore the Secretary came to his office early, and after putting himself in communication with the White House and hence with the Milburn house at Buffalo, sat anxiously scanning the bulletins that came in and awaiting any call that might be made upon him. He looked worn and nervous and anxious to the last degree, but with all he maintained his usual calm demeanor and proceeded with the discharge of his routine duties, among the first of which was the reception of the Chinese minister, who called in great agitation to express his deep concern and sympathy.

THREATS OF VIOLENCE.

Attack on Chicago Prisoners Is Urged, but Police Prevent It.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—Feeling against the anarchists ran so high that there was talk in the throngs around the bulletin boards of violence against the prisoners held by the police and sheriff for the Buffalo authorities. This was added to by irresponsible persons who mingled in the crowds of angry and outraged people and talked of calling for volunteers to take things into their own hands, without regard to law. So strong did this talk become that the police and sheriff were made exceedingly anxious, and steps were taken early to be prepared to quell any demonstration that should be made before it could amount to anything. As a precautionary measure Sheriff Magister sent Chief Clerk Lawson to Judge Chetlain, before whom the habeas corpus hearing was to be held, with a request that he go over to the Criminal Court building and sit instead of using his courtroom in the County Building, and thus make it unnecessary to expose Abraham Isaak and the other anarchists prisoners in taking them to the courtroom.

Doubt Extra Session.

Washington, Sept. 14.—It is not probable that a special session of congress will be called by the new president. There appears to be a difference of opinion among good lawyers as to the interpretation of the Hoar act, passed after the death of President Garfield, which act provided for the order of succession by members of the cabinet in case both president and vice president should die. Some lawyers hold that the vice president in becoming president shall call congress together within twenty days after taking the oath of office. Other lawyers, and among them one member of the supreme court of the United States, interprets the law to mean that an extra session of congress is necessary only when the secretary of state or other cabinet official is called upon to assume the reins of government, the theory being that the death of the president and vice president necessitates a popular election to choose his successor.

THE NEW BOOKS.

M. Quad Reviews Three of the Latest Novels.

[Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.]

"Disowned" is the title of a book which kept us awake all night and spoiled our breakfast next morning. A stern father thinks his son has married the cook, and in his haughty impetuosity not only disowns him, but harrows up his feelings by calling him a top shouldered, knockkneed, low browed son of a gun. The son bows in humility and leaves the mansion, and it is 40 years before the father discovers that instead of marrying Bridget, the cook, he married Theresa, the duke's daughter. There is a reconciliation at last, and the father makes the disowned James an allowance of $11 per week, but somehow the end of the book leaves something to be desired.

"In Her Own Coin" is a book which will take the place of Webster's Dictionary for a rainy afternoon. Carrie, a coquette, encourages about 50 different fellows to fall in love with her that she may turn them down, and as the reports of the suicide of over 50 of them come in she simply gloms over them. She is still breaking hearts when she meets a man and really falls in love with him, and after leading her on to declare her feelings he calmly informs her that he is a sausage maker, with a wife and ten children. She swoons and falls upon a pitchfork and is stabbed to the heart, and we are glad of it. The author is put down as "unknown," and we are also glad of that.

"Who Was the Heir?" is a volume to thrill. The nurse of a duchess changes the babies in the cradle—her child for the duchess'. The lady's maid sees her and changes them back. The cook sees the maid at work and removes one of the kids and slips in a stranger. The butler realizes by the cook's confusion that she has been up to snuff, and he overhauls the cradle and wrings in the coachman's son. There are no more changes, but as the kids grow up an heir is wanted to a fortune of $10,000,000. Three doctors, four lawyers, six old servants and a fortune teller try to untangle the web, but they could never, never have met with success but for a detective who discovered the letter D on the toe nail of one of the contestants. As it was plain to all that D stood for duchess and duke, the rightful heir was put in possession and the goose hung high.

Some Advantages.

"I presume you appreciate the advantages you derive from being assimilated by a civilized country?" said the interviewer to the sultan of Bazzoo Island.

"Yes, indeed," assented his majesty. "Why, I got a thousand dollars damages because of injuries sustained by swallowing the false teeth of the last missionary we put in the royal con-summe."—Baltimore American.

Vase Made About 400 B. C.

During excavations near Lampsaki, on the Dardanelles, a beautiful vase was found. It is made of burnt clay, encrusted on the exterior with gold. It has three golden handles and splendid reliefs representing hunting scenes, the date of the vase, which contained human ashes, bones and pearls, is estimated at about B. C. 400.

TO EXTEND BADGER TELEPHONE LINE

Meeting of the Stockholders Will Be Held in City of Janesville, October 11.

A meeting of the Badger Telephone company was held in the German-American bank in Milwaukee yesterday. The company owns over 400 miles of service connecting towns in the southern part of the state. At a meeting of the stockholders yesterday ways and means of refunding the indebtedness of the company were considered and a committee of five appointed to consider the question and report at an adjourned meeting of the stockholders at Janesville, October 11.

At this meeting Mr. Hawley said that new officers would be elected. The present officers are Edwin Reynolds, president and Charles F. P. Pullen secretary and treasurer. It was the desire of the stockholders, said Mr. Hawley, to bring the officers nearer the company's territory. The officers would be established at either Evansville or Janesville.

Edgar L. Wood, attorney for the company, said today that new officers would be elected if the company's debt was refunded. George Pullen, treasurer and Assistant Secretary Richmond of Evansville he said, had been managing the affairs of the company locally. The terms of the officers extended six months longer. The committee which will report at the Janesville meeting consists of H. S. Sloan and F. W. Coon, Edger-ton; H. C. Molenpauw, Clinton; J. C. Murdock, Brodhead, and C. W. Twining of Monroe. The company is capitalized for $100,000, of which 276 shares of $100 have been subscribed.

"It is the intention of the company," said H. C. Hackney, one of the principal stockholders yesterday, to adjust its indebtedness and extend its lines. We are an independent company, but if the independent telephone companies which are being organized under one management extend their lines down into our territory we shall probably reach out and join them."

The company owns property valued at $60,000, upon which rests a bonded indebtedness of $30,000.

The company owns property valued connection with the Rock county telephone company for long distance messages.

Choice of Evils.

The experience of Mr. Washburn, who, after being treated in Roosevelt hospital for acute rheumatism without success, started for his home on Long Island, was struck by lightning and completely cured, does not add materially to our exact knowledge either of rheumatism or lightning. It is a probable opinion, however, that people with or without rheumatism had better be struck by lightning than by an automobile.—New York World.

K Battery, Seventh United States Artillery, formed the principal part of the siege train assembled at Tampa during the Spanish war; it numbered 198 men of its own, with 68 men attached, six guns, 15 wagons, 68 horses and 50 mules.—New York Sun.

Baby's Coming

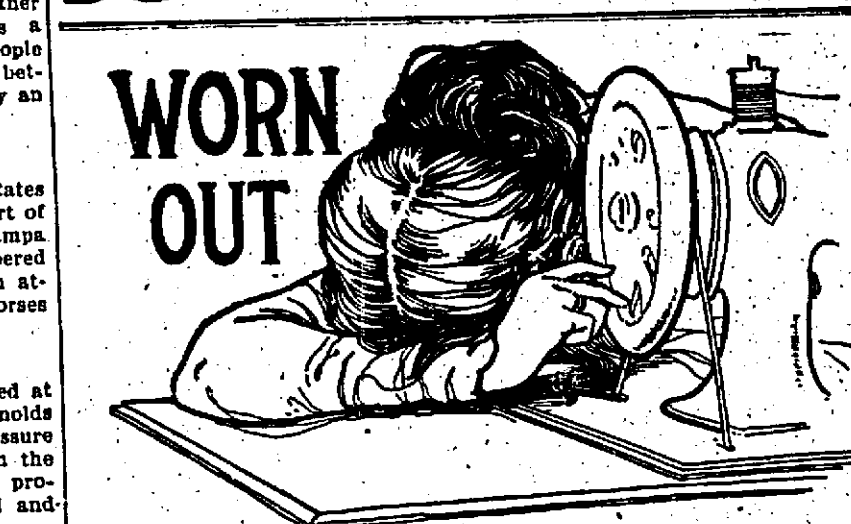

McDonald, Ga., July 18, 1900.
I advise every suffering woman to take Wine of Cardui. While I was going with my other children I was compelled to stay in bed for days at a time, but this time I have taken Wine of Cardui and Theodor's Black-Dragee and have been able to do all my housework without any trouble. I am expecting every day to be very glad. My husband thinks Wine of Cardui is the best medicine in the world. He takes a dose of Theodor's Black-Dragee every night and gives some to the children. He has not lost a day from work this year. He tells his friends about your wonderful medicines and I tell my lady friends to use your Wine of Cardui.

Mrs. GEORGIA LEE.

WINE OF CARDUI

There are thousands of women who shrink in terror at the thought of the baby's coming. But childbirth is one of the workings of Nature and it was not intended to imply torture and agony to the heroic mothers of the race. The woman who suffers torture during pregnancy and at childbirth has usually by some indication, injured the organs which make her a woman. Neglect of menstrual irregularities leads to ovarian pains, falling of the womb and leucorrhoea, and the period of pregnancy is necessarily distressing under those conditions. Wine of Cardui will regulate the menstrual function perfectly and eventually make the generative organs strong and healthy. Pregnancy and childbirth have no terrors for the woman who takes this pure Wine. A strong healthy womb will bring its precious burden to maturity with little or no pain. A healthy woman need not fear childbirth. Wine of Cardui completely cures all these troubles familiarly known as "female diseases" and equips the sensitive generative organs for pregnancy and childbirth. It will save any mother much pain and suffering. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles.

A NATION MOURNS.

For the third time during the past thirty-six years, the nation is overcome with grief because the chief executive has been removed by the hand of an assassin.

The widespread sorrow, so unusual, that it touches every hamlet, and every loyal heart throughout the length and breadth of the land, expresses the love of a people for the man who had won their hearts, and shared their confidence.

President McKinley represented the highest type of American citizenship. He worked out for himself, from the ranks of the masses, a destiny that was crowned with the greatest honor; and in all the years of development, he was true to himself, and to the God in whom he trusted.

His private life as well as his public career, was clean and wholesome; and the men who did not always agree with him, never questioned his honesty and sincerity.

The greatness of the man was never appreciated until great responsibilities were forced upon him, when he proved equal to the emergency. Conservative in judgment, considerate in action, yet firm in purpose, he guided the ship of state through troubled waters, that threatened to engulf it.

President McKinley was a man of purpose. He worked to a plan that was thoroughly thought out, and in the planning, the welfare of humanity at large, and the nation in particular, was the all-absorbing thought.

He had definite and well defined plans concerning our new possessions, that came to us as the result of unthoughtful war; and had he been permitted to live out his second term, these plans would have been fully consummated.

His grasp of international affairs was clear and vigorous, and his judgment and policy commanded the respect of the nations of the world.

To the American people he was more than a statesman, and more than a diplomat. His old upon the hearts of the people has had no parallel since the days of Lincoln, and the sorrow expressed will be more universal, because sectional lines are obliterated.

He possessed a large heart as well as a large brain; and there is so much more heart than brain in the world, that he found no trouble in touching humanity at every point, and the touch was always helpful. A man of generous impulses, his sympathy was recognized by every condition of life.

His death is a national calamity. The question of why it was permitted, will be a source of discussion and disagreement. Many good people will say that an All-Wise Providence permitted it, while many more equally as good, will charge the responsibility to negligence, where it properly belongs.

It is doubtless true that the Great Ruler of the Universe could remove anarchy from American soil; but it is just as true that He delegates that kind of work to human hands, and the American people are negligent in their duty.

President McKinley is dead, but the nation still lives; and after the first great wave of sorrow is past, it will be well for us as a people to see to it that anarchy is removed, root and branch.

SPRIT OF FORGIVENESS.

A friend of President McKinley, who stood near him when the attempt was made on his life the other day, says that the look of sorrow that came over his face for a moment, will never be effaced from his memory, and the word of commiseration for the poor wretch before him indicated the character of the great man who had been so suddenly stricken.

The look expressed surprise, with a tinge of anger or fear, for the president recognized no enemies and is a stranger to fear. Surprise that any man in this broad free land should be so thoroughly overcome by passion as to attempt murder without cause or provocation.

The word expressed the finest sentiment of christian manhood, revealing a heart that was not only strong and courageous, but that was filled with the same love and pity for weak humanity, that inspired the heart of the old martyr, Stephen, when he prayed for his enemies so long ago, "Lord forgive them for they know not what they do."

This grace of character with which the president is so richly endowed, is not only worthy of emulation, but it is within the grasp of every man and woman everywhere.

The greatness of the man in whom all sympathies center today, is beyond the ken of ordinary humanity. His popularity and strong personality are his individual birthright and inheritance, and no man may deprive him of his crown.

His statesmanship and ability to successfully guide the destiny of a great nation are as rare as they are remarkable and they cannot be imitated with any large degree of success, by the rank and file of his admirers.

The position that he holds as the chief executive is a position of the greatest honor and so difficult to attain that the aspirants are never numerous.

While it is true that President McKinley occupies an exalted position and that his greatness and success as a statesman are beyond the grasp of average humanity, it is equally true that the graces of christian character which he possesses in rare degree, may be emulated by the vast army of his admirers, however humble may be their labor calling.

Prominent among these virtues is the spirit of forgiveness, that shines out so conspicuously in these days of suffering, revealing a heart that is touched with more than human sympathy for weak and depressed humanity.

It may be urged that the president possesses a forgiving spirit, and that it is natural for him to exercise it. This may be true, but the possession is the result of sacrifice, inspired by Divine love and practiced so faithfully as to absorb and direct human will.

Do you think it natural and easy to forgive? If so, you have studied humanity too little purpose, and are a stranger to the natural impulse of your own heart.

How many men and women do you know, who are absolutely at peace with mankind. That is men and women who do their own thinking, have opinions of their own, and possess the courage to express them. Of course there are people who never have a grievance because they are like cigar store signs. They stand up where you place them and agree with you in advance, if they can find out what your opinion is. The world never banks much on this class of people; they make good ballast, but you wouldn't trust them at the wheel, or before the mast.

But people of individuality, and strong personal character, average people that you meet every day. People who are large enough to appreciate a favor and entertain a grievance, and whose capacity for the later is frequently abnormal.

It is possible that some distinction should be made in favor of women, because they are more susceptible to Divine influence than men, and the christian graces are more easily cultivated and yet there are many women who are strangers to the art of forgiveness.

A weak sister in the hour of temptation makes a mistake, and brings disgrace upon herself, and the great sisterhood she represents. It is the first and only mistake of a life that has always been exemplary. How long will it take her to redeem herself and gain the forgiveness of womankind? So long that she gives up the struggle long before the task is accomplished.

And yet the Master said to the woman brought to him in disgrace, "Go, and sin no more."

A divorced wife has the temerity to marry again. Do her sisters ever forgive her for the act? With rare exception, no.

The field of discord with men, however, is broader and a multitude of differences arise causing barriers that the spirit of forgiveness scales with difficulty.

The son goes out from the home and becomes profligate. The mother pleads for him, but the father says, "I can never forgive him."

A neighbor offended by disagreement, and the line fence that separates the two men would be no more effective in keeping them apart, if it was as high as the house top. They pass each other on the street every day without a word of recognition.

A man does you a real or imaginary wrong, and you say, "I will never forgive him as long as he lives" and you never do.

That's human nature, simple pure and as natural to the human heart as it is to breathe.

The spirit of forgiveness manifested by the great heart of President McKinley, and expressed not for an imaginary wrong, but for an attempt on his life, was prompted by the spirit of the Master, and this spirit so helpful to humanity is a meek and lowly spirit, that finds its way into the heart of a president surrounded with a wealth of love and honor, and turns aside, to the most humble suppliant, with the same strong arm of helpfulness.

The christian act of the president reveals a side of his nature to which the world was a stranger. He was known as a great man and a great statesman, but back of his greatness is the main spring of a great heart, that beats in harmony with Divinity.

The christian character of every man and woman is the inner portal. It may never be ruthlessly entered and exposed to public view as was the case with President McKinley, but it is tested in the everyday experiences of life. Happy the man or woman which the tragic time has flooded with the same spirit of forgiveness that he possessed.

UNWISE UTTERANCES.

It is to be regretted that public speakers and writers, who are impulsive, permit themselves to give expression to sentiments that invite lawlessness at times like the present when the nation is passing through an ordeal that is peculiarly trying and when the public pulse is already at fever heat.

The Rev. T. De Witt Talmage is reported at Ocean Grove as saying: "I wish with all my heart that the policemen who arrested Czolgosz had with the butt end of that pistol dashed his life out."

The Rev. Mr. Maylor of Washington, the president's own pastor, "Would have blown the scoundrel to atoms."

The Rev. John Lloyd Lee, an eminent divine of New York, is reported as saying "Until a better way is found, lynch Czolgosz on the spot."

The public mind is already inflamed, and this class of speeches from the pulpit, are not only unwise, but inflammatory in the extreme. In sharp contrast, the voice of President McKinley rings out to humanity. "Let no man hurt him; may God forgive him."

While there is no sympathy for the wretch Czolgosz, there is no disposition on the part of thinking conservative people to add to his black crime, the stain of mob law, and lawless violence.

The teachings of anarchy that emanate from the headquarters of this red handed and limited class, are not wide spread and have but little influence on the American mind, but when the pulpit, which is supposed to represent the highest type of christian teaching, advocates disregard of law, and commends violence it is time to call a halt.

Disregard of law is the foundation of anarchy, and mob law is recognized as the key stone of the foundation. The laws of the land may be weak, but they are better by far than no laws. If they are strengthened and made more wholesome, as they should be, it will be as the result of careful thought and persistent and intelligent effort, and not as the result of mob rule.

It is well for the nation, that the pulpit as well as the press of the land is not in sympathy with the erratic and inflammable utterances of a little coterie of impulsive teachers, who advocate methods that are lawless in the extreme.

Czolgosz will be punished, and anarchy has already received its death blow, but the nation will not be disgraced by deeds of violence and lawlessness.

PRES COMMENT.

Milwaukee News: It is lucky for the weather man that they didn't hold their convention during state fair week.

La Crosse Republican and Leader: While the present laws are sufficient to deal with Czolgosz, it may require an ex post facto act to adequately handle Mr. Wellington.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Prophet Elijah Dowle is worth a million dollars and is steadily adding to his store. Evidently he thinks that treasures in heaven are not to be compared with those on earth.

Chicago Journal: Anarchy, peaceful anarchy, if such a contradiction in terms can be, must henceforth be preached, lectured upon, talked on, or written about in this country.

Racine Journal: The holding of Emma Goldman as an accessory to the crime of an anarchist Czolgosz should further include numbers of others who by depicting the president as a monster and arch imperialist have helped to incite just such a man as is this Czolgosz to murder.

Mantowoc Times-Press: Would it not be well to place Senator Spooner in nomination for senator at the next republican state convention? That action would settle a lot of trouble and the people attending the caucuses would be sure to elect delegates who could be depended upon to act in the interests of harmony.

Fond du Lac Reporter: The Janesville Gazette believes that the Oshkosh Northwestern would be further rewarded by appointing Col. John Hicks to the position on the state board of control, in place of George H. Bishop, resigned. The appointment would certainly be fitting—as it would thus place three men from the Northwestern under obligation to the governor.

Appleton Post: The lepers of the Hawaiian islands are shut away by themselves within certain prescribed limitations of one of the group and in other countries such unfortunate are similarly dealt with. It is a hard fate for those so doomed because their infection is due to no fault of their own, but the public safety requires that they be so dealt with. The red-handed anarchists, however, are so from deliberate choice and training, and as they are more inimical to the well-being of society than the lepers they should forever be put beyond its pale.

The Plattville Witness: One of the best weeklies in the state, has pronounced opinion against the Primary law and populist tendencies. The "Witness" was a strong supporter of Governor La Follette, but was unable to endorse his vagaries, and reluctantly decided that while the man possessed much to admire, that his measures were erratic and visionary.

REPertoire AT MYERS GRAND

The Backman Comedy company which opens a week's engagement of repertoire at the Myers Grand on Monday night, comes to this city from Oshkosh with a record of a week of "houses" packed almost to suffocation. On the opening night the picture machine was tipped over in the crush and the Oshkosh Times says that if the playhouse had been twice as spacious, still crowds would have been turned away. After an extended complimentary notice to individual members of the company the Times says:

"Mr. Ferris may well feel proud of his new company, for no better has ever been seen at popular prices. In fact the show is far above many of the one night stands here. The company is large and costumed very handsomely, the stage settings are elaborate and the scenic effects very pretty indeed."

Indications are that the company will also do a record breaking business in this city. With a strong repertoire and splendid specialties, the company will doubtless win large patronage. The opening bill will be one of the strongest of the week, "Wife for Wife."

Sample Stock of Tobacco.
A sample stock of tobacco that was grown on the farm of T. H. Edden, in the town of Harmony was brought into this office, last evening. The stock is over four feet in height and bears twenty-five well developed leaves. The stalk is a fair sample of the balance of the crop of three acres which is being cut and put in the shed. Three acres of tobacco like the sample brought in ought to be worth a good round sum this fall if it gets through the curing process all right.

Attention Comrades
A special meeting of W. H. Sargent Post No. 20, Department of Wisconsin G. A. R., will be held at post hall tonight on account of the death of our beloved comrade, President McKinley, and also to make arrangements to attend the funeral of Comrade John Nicholson, late Lt. Col. 16th N. Y. Cavalry. It is hoped that every member of the post will be present. By order, W. J. MINTYRE, Post Com. J. G. WRAY, Post Adjutant.

There are sixteen Unitarian congregations in the state of Wisconsin and it is expected the ministers of all these will be in attendance and a considerable number of lay delegates.

Frank Jackman Won a Prize
While at Marquette, Michigan, F. H. Jackman of this city won a handsome golf driver for the best score in the qualifying round of a tournament given by the Peninsula Golf association. He and E. A. Hyde entered the contest not expecting to be in it and Mr. Hyde did not keep his score. He found out afterwards that if he had handed in his card he and Jackman would have played the finals for the prize. Mr. Jackman won out, so it was all right. Mr. Hyde returned home this morning but Mr. Jackman will stay until after the hay fever season.

An Oil Wagon Spill
An oil wagon driven by a man by the name of Babcock came to grief this morning on South Jackson street when the bride came from off one of the horses and they started on a run. Before they were stopped they made a wreck of the oil wagon, the tanks and wheels being distributed all over the road.

The wagon was about the only part of the outfit that sustained any injury. The driver escaped unhurt.

Just Between Ourselves

A nation's heart lies bleeding today. By the death of William McKinley millions of homes have been turned into houses of mourning. Tolling bells and stately banners at half mast tell the sad story of a nation's grief and the sad faces and deep shadow of gloom in the homes and on the street give eloquent evidence of the personal sorrow which has come to the people of America. All thoughts are centered on that home in Buffalo where the human casket which contained the jewel of William McKinley's sold lies cold and lifeless.

The prayers and sympathies of the wives and mothers of this nation are all for that gentle first lady of the land on whom this great bereavement has fallen most heavily. Today many eloquent eulogies of the life which passed away this morning have been written, but no eulogy can be so eloquent as that life itself and America will ever cherish with pride the memory of their president who met death in a manner so sublime.

A Christian nation finds reason for thanksgiving in the knowledge that their leader was sustained by his Christian faith, that he comforted his wife with the divine words, "God's will, not ours, be done," in his parting interview with her and that he walked bravely down into the icy waters of death's river chanting the words of "Nearer My God to Thee."

In the dark days of sorrow among the many conflicting emotions with and meet it so unflinchingly must human minds, the American people may find reason for thankfulness and pride in the fact that their leader was bowed in sorrow for their fallen leader they are not bowed in humiliation. Even in the most trying time that could come to mortal man he remained the Christian gentleman, the brave and manly hero, evincing that calm courage and perfect self control in the time of sudden and unexpected danger which all the world admires. In his magnificent courage in a great crisis the American people realized their ideal president and while loving exultations would have been made for him had he yielded for a moment to the terror with which the cowardly attack on his life might well have overwhelmed him, still our idol would have been shattered.

We need nurse no such such disappointment in our soldier president, however. The history of the world's brave nations holds no instance of greater heroism than that shown by William McKinley during the past week. The soldier who goes into battle has not only the enthusiasm of the cause for which he fights and of the numbers of comrades who are with him to inspire him to heroic deeds but he knows what battle means and is prepared to face death quietly and firmly. He is on guard and would rather die than betray any trace of cowardice. But the victim of an assassin's bullet, looking only for friendly greetings and secure in the safety which times of peace should vouchsafe every citizen of this great republic, is taken off his guard, with his reputation for bravery unprotected by the knowledge that death is near at hand. Yet William McKinley, brave leader of a brave nation has stood conspicuously in both positions and in neither has he been found wanting. As a union officer in the war of the rebellion he served his country nobly and well, winning distinction for his bravery and last week Friday, when the hand which he thought to grasp in friendship, dealt out death and suffering, his calm courage never failed him for a moment. The man who can, unwarned, rise to such an emergency and meet it so unflinchingly must be a hero through and through, with no lingering trace of cowardice or weakness in his nature. Truly he has shown himself worthy the trust and confidence of the people who chose him as their leader and whose hearts are filled with a deeper love and a more reverential admiration than ever before.

Hard though the words are to say the bullet which struck our chief magistrate fulfilled a lofty mission. First, it sounded the death-knell of anarchy in this country and though we have been awakened to an active realization of the danger that is fostered within our midst and of the abuse which is made of our boasted freedom at a fearful cost, we are learning a bitter lesson that we ought to have studied long ago. Most of our national lessons have cost us incalculable sacrifices but once learned they are never forgotten. But the fatal pistol shot rendered another public service, unthought by the assassin, and by its flash light the world was given a photograph of the character of William McKinley which will be prized forever and bequeathed to future generations as one of the priceless inheritances of American manhood.

What a magnificent picture he has given us to revere and hold up before the world which gazes in awe and wonder! Had the whole scene been planned for history's camera, had the great chief been posing for the benefit of a world of hero-worshippers, he could have done nothing grander nor more impressive than the behavior to which his genuine inherent nobility prompted him.

The entire scene of the tragedy was one of dramatic forcefulness and spectacular brilliancy. With the wonderful Pan-American exposition and the thousands of cheering, happy people as a background the tragedy and the dramatic incident which followed one another so rapidly have a wonderful impressiveness which the people have scarcely yet realized because they are filled with sorrow for the central figure. The boldness of the assassin stands out effectively. Here was no lurking, skulking murderer of the ordinary type, but a man who could look firmly into the kindly, smiling face so full of friendship and brotherly love, grasp the hand extended to him in a loving spirit of equality and then deliberately shoot not only the gentleman and the Christian, but the president of this land of freedom to his death.

Impressive also was the fact that the first hand to strike down the assassin was the hand of a negro, that race for whose freedom the wounded man had fought and suffered in bygone days. The speedy gathering of militia and police, the quickness with which the president was cared for and the assassin secured, the transformation of cheering thousands into a howling mob, the swiftness with which the sad news was spread over the country was all wonderful in its way. Not one of all of the participants in that tragic scene, save the assassin alone, had reason to blush over his behavior.

Most wonderful of all was the grandeur of the man to whom the eyes of the world turned. Taken unawares he never quailed, never showed a moment of terror or of hatred. The smile on his face turned to a look of wonder of contempt and then to one of supreme pity. No one could hear of his first words, "May God forgive him" without thinking of those never dying words uttered on Calvary as similar in spirit. Truly, William McKinley had learned of him who centuries ago said "Father forgive them, they know not what they do."

Then followed his tender solicitude for the frail woman who has leaned on his protecting care for many years and his brave determination to live for her sake, if possible. As he went onto the operating table the last words which he whispered before he lost consciousness were, "Thy kingdom come; Thy will be done."

Grandly he has lived; grandly he passed the closing days of his earthly career. In the last sad days he unconsciously came nearer to the hearts of the people and he will be mourned more sincerely than would have been possible without this terrible tragedy. The name of William McKinley has been added to the list of our martyr presidents and none will be more highly honored and loved. He was ever the servant of the people and it may be that the future will reveal the fact that in his death he gave the greatest and noblest service of all. L. F. B.

FOR AFTERNOON TEA.

Cooling Recipes Which Can Be Served on Warm Days.

The center of hospitality in summer as well as in winter is of course the afternoon tea table. With its dainty silver and china appointments it is a joy to the eye as well as an unfailing aid to conversation. Of course, the traditional cup of tea waiting for whoever wishes it, but there are many cooling recipes which are perhaps more tempting in warm weather. One of these is currant Julep.

Mash a pint of currants, add a pint of water, rub through a sieve and strain through cheesecloth; set on ice to chill. Use tall, thin glasses, with crushed ice in the bottom of each and three cubes of sugar.

Line with stalks of mint tall enough to come above the brim, and on top of the sugar place three ripe raspberries. Fill the glasses to within an inch of the top with iced currant water and serve with straws.

A decided novelty is iced chocolate.

Mix six level teaspoonfuls of melted chocolate in one quart of boiling milk. Remove from fire and sweeten to taste. Add three drops of cinnamon extract and one-fourth of a pint of clear, strong coffee. Cool, then set on ice until chilled thoroughly. Remove every vestige of the oil which floats on top. Pour into iced glasses and place on top of each a large spoonful of whipped cream seasoned with vanilla.

THOSE PANAMA HATS.

How a Cincinnati Man Was Bunked on the Isthmus.

"I made up my mind before I went away," said the Cincinnati man who had been down to Panama I'd have a genuine Panama hat at any cost. That was the only thing I cared to buy, and I visited the store having the largest stock and took my time about the purchase. I plunked down $15 for the hat and was assured by the merchant that it was one of the finest ever made. It was overhauled by a dozen different people on the steamer, much admired in New York, and it was raskily cocked on my ear when I arrived home. I hadn't yet reached my house when I met a Florida friend of mine, and after a little he said:

"Been laying yourself on a new hat, I see?"

"Yes. How do you like it?"

"Oh, so so. Buy in New York?"

"No, sir. I got this hat right where they grow—in Panama."

"I see. I believe they do sell some of our goods down there, but of course they add 50 per cent to the price."

"What do you mean?" I asked as I felt my heart tuck my ribs.

"Oh, nothing much," he replied, with a laugh, and, running his fingers behind the band, he turned up the trademark of a Florida straw hat maker."

Time Required for Preparation.

An eminent Scotch divine was once asked how long he would require to prepare a speech. "That depends," said he, "upon how much time I am to occupy in its delivery. If I am to speak for a quarter of an hour, I should like a week to prepare; if I am to speak for half an hour, three days will do; if I am to go on as long as I like, I am ready now."

SUDDEN DEATH OF JOHN NICHOLSON

PROMINENT SOUTH WISCONSIN MAN PASSES AWAY.

Peaceful Ending of a Long and Eventful Career at the Home of His Son in This City Early This Morning—Funeral Sunday Afternoon at 2:30 O'clock.

The sudden and severe illness of Colonel John Nicholson, one of the most prominent citizens of Monroe, came to a peaceful ending at 3:10 o'clock this morning when his death occurred at the home of his son, Frank T. Nicholson, 157 Chatham street where he had been visiting since Monday. From the time Col. Nicholson suffered the paralytic stroke at one o'clock yesterday morning, it was known that his death must certainly follow within a few hours. His wife was in Milwaukee at the time at the state fair and his sons were both absent from the city on business trips. Telegrams were sent to them and Mrs. Nicholson reached this city last night about 11 o'clock. At Milton Junction she met her son, John H. Nicholson, who was on his way home, unconscious of the sorrow that was awaiting him. Mother and son came from Milton Junction on the stock freight train. The delay in reaching him was due to the fact that he had started out in the country in a carriage. The liveryman at Arkyle, Wis., heard that Mr. Nicholson was wanted at home and he drove out and overtook him.

Mother and son reached the bedside of their loved one too late to be recognized. Col. Nicholson, who was lovingly cared for by his daughters-in-law, Messlames F. F. and J. H. Nicholson, passed in unconsciousness at noon yesterday and never roused. Just before his death his lips moved and those beside him leaned over to hear the faint whisper, "Our Father Who art in Heaven, look down upon me." With these words he passed into life eternal.

Col. John Nicholson was born in Elbridge, Onondaga county, New York on September 15th, 1824, and he will be laid to rest on his seventy-seventh birthday. Fifty-two years ago in Jordan, New York, the ceremony which gave him Miss Mary C. Holway as his devoted wife and helpmeet was performed and for over half a century they have trod life's pathway together. The life which has just passed away was unusually eventful and Col. Nicholson looked back over experiences which came to but few men. In early life he was a sailor and he had sailed in all the known seas all over the world, and visited many foreign countries. Once he was shipwrecked in the mid ocean and cast away on an island, inhabited by cannibals. His companions were all killed by the cannibals, but by some miracle his life was spared and after living among the natives for some time he escaped and was rescued.

He served for a time in the French army, being impressed into the service of France. His own country he served voluntarily, being a veteran both in the Mexican war and in the war of the rebellion. During the latter war he won high military honors. He served throughout the entire war being a member of the first regiment that marched out of Buffalo for the front and returning with the last regiment which came back from the war, colonel of the 16th New York cavalry. He did not pass through the fire of shot and shell unscathed and the injuries which he received while in his country's service made him an invalid all the rest of his life and unfitted him for active business. For a number of years after the war he was captain of police at Buffalo.

For the past thirty-two years Col. Nicholson has made his home at Monroe where he is most highly esteemed. He is also well known and honored in this city, where both his sons reside and where he and his wife have visited frequently. He was a man of deeply religious nature being a devout member of the Methodist church at Monroe. Broad minded and liberal in his religious views his entire life was governed by a spirit of kindness and wherever he made an acquaintance he made a friend. Friendly, genial and well informed he was a man who was always a pleasant companion, beloved by his friends and idolized by the nearer and dearer ones of his family circle. His domestic life was ideal and to his memory no higher tribute can be paid than that given him by his bereaved ones, that he was one of the best of husbands and fathers, tender and patient in his devotion.

Deceased leaves in the deep sorrow of bereavement an aged wife, the two sons, Frank F. and John H. Nicholson, both of this city, and six grand-children, Gale, Gladys, Maude, and Margie Nicholson, of this city, and John and Libbie Nicholson, of Brodhead, children of the deceased man's eldest son, the late Fred Nicholson.

Funeral services will be held from the home of F. F. Nicholson Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Robt. C. Denison officiating. W. H. Sargeant Post No. 20 G. A. R., will be present as an organization in honor of a departed comrade and the interment will be in Oak Hill cemetery.

Unish Memorial Service

At Trinity church tomorrow night at 7:30 the two parishes will unite in a memorial service in behalf of the chief magistrate of the country, who welfare has been on the lips and in the prayers of the church at all of her public offices.

H. B. McArthur of Beloit was a visitor to this city yesterday.

The Salvation Army Barracks have been moved to No. 17 North Main street. Captain McIntyre says that the location is much better and the fact that it is on the ground floor will stimulate the attendance to the meetings each evening. Plenty of seats have been provided. An unusually large number of people are planning to attend the Walworth county fair at Elkhorn next week. This event has always proven a drawing card for Rock county people and the improvement in train service over the new line makes travel much easier to this point. Special features, both in the race program and list of daily events have been added and this year's fair will be historical. A. H. Hart of Guilford was awarded damages of $2,000 against the Beloit, Delavan Lake and Janesville road by a jury at Rockford yesterday. $800 was for land condemned and $1,200 for damages sustained by the passing of the road in front of his property. The damages are regarded as very high. R. W. Hill this morning that while the jury has placed the damage at an exorbitant rate, the railroad company was not obliged to take the property and he thought that the route would be changed in preference to paying the price assessed. Pearl Baker, the colored girl from Beloit arrested a short time ago on the charge of "touching" M. L. Cottingham for sixteen cents of the denomination of one dollar each, was discharged yesterday morning at her preliminary trial at Beloit on motion of District Attorney Jackson. Silas Menzie appeared for the defendant. Lack of evidence was the cause assigned for the dismissal.

SORROW IS SHOWN IN JANESVILLE

BUSINESS PRACTICALLY SUSPENDED IN THIS CITY.

Political Lines Were Wiped Away, and All Stood as Citizens Awed by the Great Tragedy of the Death of President McKinley—Inquiries Were Numerous Last Night.

At last the sad tidings which for the past week a waiting nation has dreaded to hear have come, and in Janesville, as in every city in the great republic, this has been a day of gloom, sorrow, and fruitless questioning of the impervious ways of Providence. The two Friday's just past have been sad days for the American people. A week ago on Friday night they were shocked and startled by the news that President McKinley had been shot. Then followed a week of passionate hope for his recovery; and when the nation went to sleep Thursday night, it was with the feeling of perfect assurance that the president was out of danger.

The awakening yesterday morning was a rude one, and men on their way to business early yesterday morning were shocked when the news of the president's dying was received. So unexpected was the news that it was doubted at first, but when succeeding bulletins confirmed the first report doubt gave way to a certain dread and for the rest of the day the loved name was on every lip and anxious inquiry as to the latest news formed almost the sole topic of conversation in the homes and on the streets.

Business was practically abandoned and business men gathered in front of bulletin boards and on street corners and talked in hushed voices of the deepening sorrow. Political lines were wiped away, sectional differences were forgotten and all stood as citizens of the great republic, awed by the dreadful tragedy and saddened by the shadow of death so far reaching in its darkness. Some idea of the intensity of interest manifested in the president's calamity can be gained from the number of inquiries received at the Gazette office, not only made in person but over the telephone as well.

Both telephones were kept busy all day and so constant and continuous were the inquiries that it required the services of one person to each phone to answer them. The lines were in constant use and information from the central office reveals the fact that there was scarcely a minute during the day when there were not people waiting to secure connections with this office.

The office force remained on duty until late in the evening and a rough estimate shows that near 10,000 inquiries were answered over the telephone. All hope for the president's recovery died out early the day and when the city was awakened early this morning by the tolling bells, the people knew that their president had passed away. The message announcing his death came to this city shortly before 12 o'clock and immediately the bells on the two main houses tolled fifty-eight strokes, the number of his years. At half minute intervals.

The bell of the Congregational church was also tolled and the round house whistle in muffled tones sounded forth the sad tidings. It is a curious fact also that in many neighborhoods the tolling of the bells was accompanied by the dismal howling of dogs. This morning all the flags in the city were placed at half mast and already the windows of prominent business houses are being draped in honor of the nation's dead, the best beloved president since the time of Lincoln. On every hand are heard expressions of sorrow and in no city is William McKinley more sincerely mourned than in Janesville.

ANDREW OLSON DIED IN HOSPITAL

Andrew Olson who was taken to the county hospital Tuesday night died last night about eight o'clock from the effect of the extreme exposure.

Olson regained his senses after he was found Thursday, but could give no information as to his former home excepting that he came from Michigan about four weeks ago and that he had worked for a railroad contractor named Johnson. He seemed to keep further information back. He claimed to have a sister by the name of Amelia Olson and that she formerly resided in Oak Park Hill. He did not know whether or she was still there and did not know but that she had been married. Olson is evidently about thirty years of age and an ordinary sized man with light mustache and hair, inclined to be sandy.

He had a mole on the left side of his chin and a scar running around under the chin. He will be buried this afternoon at the county grounds unless some definite information regarding his relatives is learned.

RAILWAY BRIDGE AT BURR SPRINGS

Bower City Boat Club Will Watch Closely Any Attempts to Build Over Rock River.

A meeting of the Bower City Boat club was held last evening, called for the purpose of considering a common report that the Chicago & North-western railway company contemplated building a bridge across Rock river at a point above the city near Burr Springs. Owners of pleasure crafts feared that the railway company might build a low bridge thus cutting off launches and steamers from ten miles of the prettiest part of the river and resolutions requesting the company to provide a free and safe passage way were drawn up ready for adoption by the boat club. It was finally decided, however, that there was no immediate need for such definite action and a committee was appointed to watch the progress of affairs and be prepared to take any necessary steps to secure the protection of those who find enjoyment on the water of Rock River. The committee appointed consists of Tracy Brown, W. H. Merritt and Dr. E. H. Dudley.

Pollard's Injuries Curious.

The curious part about Pollard's injuries, are that he has no marks any place on his body except a discolored place on the side of his head near the temple. He was found in the railroad yards near the road crossing just west of the station. No one saw him go into the yard and none of the train hands remember of seeing anyone around the tracks where they might be hit by a train on the switch engine. He had not recovered consciousness this morning so as to be able to tell how it happened.

Tom Condon, a man living in Edgerton, was the last man seen with him before he was found. He details being with him or knowing anything about the circumstances leading to his injuries. An investigation is being held to see if the responsibility for his injuries can be located.

DO NOT say, "Life Insurance is not a profitable investment."

How, then, does it happen that the foremost and far-seeing business and professional men of the country are carrying large amounts of Investment Insurance? Why does John Wanamaker carry $1,500,000 Life and Investment Insurance? Why did E. P. Allis, of Milwaukee, carry $460,000 on his life? The whole of this latter amount was paid to his executors within twenty days after his death, the Northwestern auditing $50,000 of it the day after proofs were received.

November, 1898—Elected governor of New York.
June 21, 1900—Nominated for vice president of the United States.
Nov. 6, 1900—Elected vice president of the United States.
March 4, 1901—Took the oath of office as vice president of the United States and assumed his duties as president of the United States senate.
Sept. 14, 1901—Took the oath of office for president.

Theodore Roosevelt, now president of these United States, was born October 20, 1858, at No. 28 East Twentieth street, New York city. His father, also Theodore Roosevelt, was a member of an old New York Dutch family, and Mr. Roosevelt is of the eighth generation of the stock of the United States. Mingled with the Dutch in Theodore Roosevelt's veins are strains of English, Celtic, and French. His mother was Miss Martha Bulloch, and came of a distinguished Georgia family, which had given to that state a governor, Archibald Bulloch, in Revolutionary times. In a later generation a member of the family built the Confederate privateer Alabama.

The father of Theodore Roosevelt was a merchant and importer of glassware. During the civil war he was a noted figure in New York. He had great strength of character and liking for practical benevolence, which made him foremost in many such charities.

Weakly as a child.
Theodore Roosevelt appeared to have a brief life before him. He was weakly as a child; as a boy he could not join in the rougher sports of his associates. In early manhood he realized that something would have to be done to improve his physical condition and at Harvard he became identified with the less boisterous sports of his classmates. He became expert at lightweight boxing and was soon recognized as the most skillful among the young men of his age. He graduated well up in his class in 1880, and still feeling the need of physical strengthening went to Europe, where he climbed the Jungfrau and the Matterhorn and became a member of the Alpine club by reason of these achievements.

In 1880, on his return to this country, he paid his first visit to the west. He avoided the routes and the customs of the ordinary tourist and sought recreation in the wilds of North Dakota and Montana, where there was no opportunity for indulgence in luxurious ease. He reached Montana in time to take part in the last great buffalo hunt of that region, which took place near Pretty Butte. Both whites and Indians participated in the sport and a large number of buffalo were slain.
On his return to New York Mr. Roosevelt joined the Eighth regiment of the state guard, being chosen second lieutenant. He reached to the rank of captain in 1888. It was the training he received that so well qualified him for the position of assistant secretary of the navy, to which he was appointed shortly after Mr. McKinley's induction into office as president of the United States.

His Legislative Career.

For three terms, in 1882, 1883 and 1884, Mr. Roosevelt was a member of the New York assembly. Here he made his mark as a forcible public speaker, and during the last two terms at least was regarded as a leader on the republican side. He was somewhat impatient of dictation however and incurred the enmity of the bosses of his party. They did not openly discipline him however for they were compelled to recognize the fact that he was backed by an element they could not afford to offend. But in various ways they sought to impress upon his mind that a little more tractability would be acceptable. But to these warnings Mr. Roosevelt paid no heed, and was finally snubbed by being denied a re-nomination.

On a Ranch in Dakota.

In 1884 Mr. Roosevelt was a delegate to the republican national convention, held in Chicago. Here he joined with George William Curtis and other so-called liberal members of the party in opposing the nomination of James G. Blaine for the presidency. After that statesman's triumph however Mr. Roosevelt gave him a hearty support.

After Mr. Blaine's defeat he returned to his ranch in Dakota. Here he lived in a rude house of hewn logs and roughed it in the hills and over the prairies, bagging considerable game. His experiences during this period were told in a book he published in 1885 entitled "The Making of the West," and in two subsequent volumes, "The Winning of the West," and "Ranch Life and the Hunting Trail." Neither of these books had a very extensive sale, but they were not written with a view to profit and the author did not bemoan the lack of public appreciation manifested.

Upon the election of Benjamin Harrison as president of the United States Mr. Roosevelt was appointed a member of the civil service commission. He acquitted himself so well that he was retained in the office by President Cleveland for some time, resigning to accept the post of police commissioner of New York City under the mayoralty of William M. Strong.

When Tammany once more triumphed in the municipal contest of 1897 Mr. Roosevelt resigned to accept the position of assistant secretary of the navy. At that post he showed his usual promptitude, energy and efficiency.

As a Naval Chief.

As president of the strategic board and of the war board preceding the actual outbreak of the Spanish American war, Mr. Roosevelt energetically pushed the repairs on ships at the navy yard, devised a scheme for eliminating the friction between the line and engineer corps of the navy, and from the moment it became evident that a conflict with Spain was inevitable advanced an aggressive and not a defensive attitude. He announced that he would apply for war service as soon as hostilities had actually begun.

Though President McKinley and Secretary Long were loth to lose his services in the department, they acquiesced in his decision. On May 6, 1898, he resigned to take charge as lieutenant colonel under Colonel Leonard Wood, U. S. A., of the organization of the regiment now popularly known as Roosevelt's rough riders. That name, though alliteratively felicitous, has a hippodrome suggestion which is far less in keeping with its real objects than the tamer official designation given to it by the army department, The First Regiment of Mounted Rifle Rangers.

Chief of the Rough Riders.

The complement of men in the rough riders was fixed at 750, but it is said that 10,000 applications for membership were received. The men accepted had to submit to a rigid physical and mental examination. They were thoroughly trained and disciplined at the camp at San Antonio, Tex., in all the requisites of good soldiers. Their personnel varied from the society favorites of New York to the cowboys of the plains.

On May 29 they left San Antonio for Tampa, where they joined Shafter's army of invasion. In the gallant landing at Baiquiri on June 23, and in the subsequent fighting which preceded the fall of Santiago, the rough riders were distinguished for their courageous efficiency.

As a result of this encounter Roosevelt was promoted to the colonelcy of his regiment, Colonel Wood having been advanced to the rank of brigadier general. Colonel Roosevelt's gallant action at San Juan on July 2 was conspicuous. According to his own reports of the engagement, although he was the only mounted man and consequently the most conspicuous object for the bullets of the enemy, he dashed ahead of his regiment up a hill, captured a block house on the summit and then with 300 men, the scattered fragments of six dismounted cavalry regiments, drove the Spaniards from another hill on the right.

Platt Wanted to Retire Him.

At the close of hostilities Colonel Roosevelt resigned his position in the army and returned to New York, but not to rest. An exciting political campaign was at hand, and he leaped at once into the thickest of the fray. At the solicitation of his friends he presented himself as a candidate for governor. Mr. Platt sought to obtain pledges from him that he refused to make. Thereupon Platt threatened the rough rider with defeat. The challenge was accepted, Roosevelt got the nomination and after a vigorous campaign was elected despite the lukewarmness of the leaders of his party toward him. His administration of the office of governor was more commonplace than almost anything else in which he has figured. He gave satisfaction to his own partisans and was sharply criticised by the democrats for some of his official acts. His term however was free from any pronounced scandals.

A Satisfactory Presiding Officer.

As presiding officer of the United States senate, as vice president, Mr. Roosevelt has won the best wishes of the members of that body. He was expected, as some of the staid members of that body declared, to display some of his cowboy airs. But in the chair he proved himself moderate, courteous and considerate of all, and at the close of the last session of congress there were few who criticised him.

Value of the Giraffe Skin.

A good giraffe skin is worth from $10 to $25 in Africa today, and much more in Europe or America. On their hunting trips ten or fifteen years ago it was a common matter for one hunter to kill 40 or 50 of these graceful animals in one day. And it is now discovered hunters were not wanting for the giraffes is getting more and more scarce; soon it is feared it will become extinct, as many other animals have done after excessively pursued.

State Lacks Large Cities.

West Virginia increased 40 per cent in population between 1870 and 1880, 23 per cent between 1880 and 1890, and 25 per cent between 1890 and 1900, but it is, outside of Wheeling, which is practically an Ohio town, lacking in large cities, having no other city of as much as 12,000 population.

Living of Subalterns.

An English army officer who has a close acquaintance with both the French and German armies has been endeavoring to arrive at the average amount per annum which it costs a subaltern in England, France and Germany to live in the army. The figures he gives are: France, $400; Germany, $700; England, $1,200.

The New Woman

By ELIZA ARCHARD CONNER.

Sitting here at my desk during the summer I have watched with much interest the different ways in which women take their vacations. Really original, resourceful ones generally go vacationing in a way out of the common rut. They do it unconsciously, without the vulgar idea of being different from other people just to attract attention to themselves. Some ladies have made a trip from New York to Boston or from Boston to New York and back by trolley, a journey past green fields and under open skies, blue or gray, but always glorious and expansive. We may look forward with delight to the time when this great country is trolleyed from one end to the other. Entangling summer vacation trips there will be then, as in the delightful old stagecoach days, only these will be cleaner, swifter, and there will be no horses to wear out. One young lady lawyer, whom I know went with a friend on a bicycle journey through part of New England. She has one of the new cushion frame, chainless, coaster brake machines, and skinned like a bird 60 miles a day without fatigue. Most of all, however, appeals to the imagination Mr. and Mrs. Decker's automobile journey from the Atlantic coast to Texas. Mrs. Decker was captain and pilot, Mr. Decker was crew. Away they went, on good highways nearly a mile a minute, over roads yellow and red in the clay country, white in the limestone region and dusty and black in the rich loam plains. If there be anything approaching perfect happiness on earth, it is this. Here's hoping we shall all have automobiles some day! This kind of travel, too, is like flying, and flying is the next attainment the genius of man will achieve.

The Era, a woman's club of New Orleans, started a few years ago with nine members. Now it has 100, all of them earnest, public spirited workers. I notice a "professor" advertises to teach people personal magnetism. If you want personal magnetism, cultivate good will and kindness to every creature. If you have an enemy, put out good will and friendship all the more strongly to that enemy. So shall you lift yourself above the plane of human jealousies and bickerings. So shall a perfect aura of personal magnetism stream out around you.

A woman's own estimate of herself is more nearly correct than that of the women who claim to be her friends.

Johnnie Blank is the only son of his mother, and she is a widow. He is one of the best sons living. Johnnie is an office boy and hands his little $3 a week faithfully over to his mother. She is a dressmaker and works very hard. The two together do their housework. Johnnie washes dishes, scrubs floors and even carries home the kerosene can full of oil without a murmur, for he loves his mother. There is only one thing among the thousand which he might "kick" about that he objects to—he says he doesn't mind anything except when his mother takes a corset upon him and uses him for a dummy over which to fit the gowns of her customers.

Is there any woman artist in America who can paint a horse race or a cavalry dash like Lucy Kemp-Welch of England? We have in America one woman who has pictured a horse race splendidly in poetry. That woman is Ella Wheeler Wilcox, and the poem is "Salvator."

Rev. Edward McSweeney, Roman Catholic, of Mount St. Mary's, Md., puts himself down in favor of woman suffrage. He writes: "All the while that we claim home as the province of woman we hope she will help us in political matters generally, for that home is now coextensive with the city—nay, with the country, with the world."

STATE FAIR CLOSES WITH SURPLUS; HAS $6,000 CASH IN THE TREASURY

Horse Show Was a Big Success--Last Day of Fair Draws an Attendance of Seven Thousand.

Milwaukee, Sept. 14.—With approximately $6,000 left in the treasury and with the conviction in the minds of everybody that it has been the biggest and best event of its kind ever held in the state, aside from attendance, the state fair closed last night. There is money enough to assure another and a even better fair next year and it will be held.

The Horse Show was a success, not only as a feature of the fair, but as a social event, the first of its kind in Milwaukee. The Derby had but two entries, the Calumet's Deluder, ridden by George Schulze, and the Carlton's Baby Lu, ridden by Thomas Dunbar, but it was even as much of a success as if the entire seven entries had shown up at the post. Baby Lu won by four lengths.

The big feature of the day was the Horse Show, but it was not the only one. There were a few people who dragged themselves by the grandstand and went to see the cattle and horses in the barns at the far end of the grounds, while the balloon man went up successfully and elicited a chorus of "Ahs" from several thousand people, the trapeze performer in front of the grandstand dividing the attention of the 7,000 people in the grandstand between themselves and the races.

"The fair has been a great success as a fair," said President George McKerron, at the close of the day yesterday, "and we will have enough money left over to insure a good fair next year. Our balance will probably amount to $6,000. The attendance has been exceptional in view of the bad weather that we have had. The officials of the fair sincerely thank the city of Milwaukee for this, and the kind interest it has manifested in a dozen different ways. This fair was a good one, but next year's, we hope, will be bigger and better."

The Last Shot.

For some inexcusable act of impudence and rebellion Bridget had received two weeks' pay and a notice to quit Mrs. Highmore's service immediately.

"You've accused me o' wearin' flashy jewelry, too, mem," snapped Bridget as she hastily gathered her belongings together, "but I'd rather wear that th' ugly old rings you've always displayin' yourself whenever you go out."

"What ugly old rings?" asked Mrs. Highmore indignantly.

"Gudher your eyes, mem!" replied Bridget, slamming the kitchen door behind her as she went out.—Chicago Tribune.

To Be Considered.

"Do you play golf?" asked the man who was looking for a new clerk.

"No," answered the applicant.

"Well," was the thoughtful rejoinder, "I don't know but I'd rather have some one who is already skilled in the game. The time you will want away from work when you do start to learn it will be something enormous."—Washington Star.

A Domestic Incident.

"John, dear, have you lit the fire?" "Yes, dear?"

"And put the kettle on?"

"It's boiling."

"And dressed the children?"

"Every one of 'em."

It Was One of His.

"That was rather a—well, a tame sermon of yours this morning, Mr. Mildman," said the rector, just returned from a holiday.

"Was it, sir?" responded the curate.

"It wasn't mine, I've been too busy this week to write one, and I took it from a bundle in your handwriting out of the library."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Hoarding His Funds.

Old Gentleman—My friend, what do you do with your wages every week—put part of them in the savings bank?

Bus Driver—No, sir; after paying the grocer, butcher and the rent I pack what's left away in barrels. I don't believe in savings banks.

More Space Required.

Mr. Gooph—When I die, I don't want anything but the truth about me carved on my tombstone.

Mrs. Gooph—I am afraid we will have to put up a stone wall, then, instead of a monument.—Baltimore American.

Wanted to Be Sure of Her.

"I want to buy a monument for Maria's grave," said the Billville citizen.

"A large one?"

"Well, I reckon 'bout ten ton will do. It'll take jest 'bout that much to hold her down!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Variety.

First Neighbor—The piano tuner was at your house yesterday, wasn't he?

Second Neighbor—Yes.

"It was such a delightful change."—Detroit Free Press.

BOWSER'S DAY OFF.

HE TAKES IN AN EXCURSION TO
HEN ISLAND.It Was Given by the Band of Gentle Brothers, but Before the Trip Was Over He Found the Brothers Were Anything but Gentle.

[Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.]

"Now, then," said Mr. Bowser the other evening when dinner had been finished, "I have a little surprise for you which I have been saving up for three or four days. Have you got things in the house so that you can pack a lunch basket by 8 o'clock in the morning?"

"What on earth do you mean?" asked Mrs. Bowser in great surprise.

"Nothing, except that I am going to take a day off tomorrow, and you might as well go with me. There's to be a steamboat excursion of the B. O. G. B. to Hen Island, and it will be a relief to get out on the water."

"Is it a club?"

"Of course. It's one of the clubs I joined last spring—Band of Gentle Brothers. Mighty nice lot of fellows, and this is to be an exclusive thing."

THERE WAS A LITTLE ROW.

you know. It's a ride of 20 miles to Hen Island, and when we get there we'll find a little paradise. We must be at the dock by 9 o'clock. There's nothing to prevent you from going, I suppose?"

"No," she hesitatingly replied.

"But don't you want to go?"

"It would be very nice, but I'm afraid you'll—"

"I'll what?" he sharply demanded.

"Do you mean I'll get mad and raise a row?"

"Yes."

"I shall do nothing of the sort. If we were fools enough to go on a common excursion, I might see things to find fault with, but this is to be select and exclusive, and a fraternal spirit will pervade the atmosphere. There'll be everything to praise and nothing to criticize. Tell the cook to have the lunch basket packed in time."

"Should—should things not go right you won't blame me, will you?" queried Mrs. Bowser as she fled about.

"My dear woman," replied Mr. Bowser as he lifted the family cat to his knees and gently stroked her back, "everything will go right, and we'll have a day of unalloyed happiness."

She yielded with a sigh and with just a glimmer of hope that the day might possibly pass without a calamity. Mr. Bowser got up next morning in great good spirits, and he seemed so determined to make a jolly day of it that certina and sip a glass of cold beer. One of them at length got the idea that she was unhappy, and he chuckled her under the chin and told her funny stories until he fell off his chair and was dragged off to join the score that had gone before. It was due Mr. Bowser to record the fact that he was a hero for an hour or more. That is, he sought to be a Gentle Brother with the others. He put up with everything and kicked at nothing, and had the cat at home been there to see that bland smile on his face she would have been deceived into the belief that he was taking solid comfort. Even when Mrs. Bowser asked him to explain how it was that so many Gentle Brothers had happened to get out of state prison at once he preserved that smile as he replied:

"My dear woman, they are out to enjoy themselves for the day, and their exultation cannot be entirely restrained. When we reach the island, we will go off by ourselves to eat our lunch."

He had been told by a Gentle Brother and he had told Mrs. Bowser in turn that the island was a sylvan grove and that a thousand people could lose themselves in the shady nooks and cool retreats. When it was reached, however, things looked different. It was an island with three scraggly old trees growing in the center, and there were 12 blades of grass, one burdock and two thistles as ornaments. The G. B.'s made no kick, however. They rushed ashore with their lunch baskets and had their kegs of beer rolled after them; and their gambols were full of happiness, and their voices told only of merriment. Mrs. Bowser objected to going ashore, but Mr. Bowser patiently argued the point with her and carried it. They had to take a seat on a rock in the hot sun, and neither of them could eat a mouthful of lunch, but they had got along very well when Mr. Bowser was asked to join in the games. He excused himself, but the Gentle Brothers wouldn't have it that way. He had been impolitic enough to boast that he could jump higher than any one in the club, and now they wanted to witness the feat. When he continued to claw off, half a dozen men seized him and dragged him forth, and the climax came. That is, Gentle Brother Bowser broke loose and tumbled his resignation on the spot and told the other G. B.'s what he thought of them, and of course the fraternal spirit didn't pervade after that. On the contrary, they looked upon him as a naughty outcast and felt that he should be made an example of.

Mrs. Bowser will never be able to tell whether all the 350 Gentle Brothers pitched on to Mr. Bowser at once, but what she saw was a crowd surrounding him and tossing him back and forth and rolling him over and over and keeping him busy for ten minutes. Then they threw him into the water and hauled him out again, and she was permitted to claim his remains. They were not altogether dead. When they had been fanned for half an hour, they sighed and opened their eyes, and a conscience stricken G. B. assisted her to get them aboard the boat and prop them up in a chair. It was two hours after that before the boat started, and she was two hours making the trip home, but during those four long hours the remains never once uttered a word. They simply sat and stared into vacancy. A few of the Gentle Brothers came around and said

RAMSAY IN SCHLEY COURT.

New Man Is Chosen to Succeed Rear Admiral Howison.

Washington, Sept. 14.—The Navy Department has appointed Rear Admiral Francis M. Ramsay as the third member of the Schley court of inquiry to succeed Rear Admiral Howison. Admiral Ramsay retired April 5, 1897. His home is in Washington. It is understood that the court will resume Monday morning. A significant feature of the proceedings yesterday was the declaration of Judge Advocate General Lemly that Sampson should not be brought into the investigation and Judge Raynor's equally emphatic statement that Sampson could not be kept out of it. W. H. Stayton of New York, Sampson's legal representative, attended the session here, but did not make his presence officially known. Owing, however, to Raynor's plainly expressed determination to involve Sampson in the investigation, Stayton will at the next session request permission to represent the admiral in court. Stayton says: "Admiral Sampson will go upon the stand if necessary. If the case takes the turn that now seems likely, he will certainly appear." All reports that have reached this city were to the effect that Sampson's physical condition is such that his appearance here is utterly impossible.

Brocade and Silk Frames.
Photograph frames of old brocades and embroidered silks are usurping the place of the long-loved gold, silver and Dresden frames. One intended for a little child's portrait is worth describing. It is a large panel size in palest blue satin. Up the right side is a tall, dark pine, of which the long trunk, the cones and branches are exquisitely embroidered in natural colors, and right across the other side is a flight of doves in white silk and silver thread, with tiny ruby eyes.

Ibsen Loved as a Poet.
Although Ibsen is best in England and the United States as a dramatist, the Norwegians love him also as a poet. Edward Grieg, has set some of his most beautiful music to Ibsen's lyrics, and "Peer Gynt" is full of the romance and ardor of the singer. Ibsen used to take an eccentric delight in wearing the pink of fashion. His ties, his coat, his shoes and his hat have always been irreproachable.

Quite the Style
THIS SEASON.

This design, quite in evidence in London, New York and Chicago society, is a fac-simile of the celebrated Gainsborough. Ladies who do not have an abundance of beautiful hair cannot look becoming in this hat, as it makes the head appear too small. In such a case we would recommend the use of Danderine, the great hair tonic. Two or three months' use of it will make the hair much thicker and increase its length several inches without changing its natural color a particle. Now at all druggists in three sizes—25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Be sure you get the genuine, made only by the Knowlton Danderine Co., Chicago, Ill. For sale by King's pharmacy and Peoples' Drug Co.

Lavender Time Is Old England.
The very first of the lavender spikes are being hawked about the streets and the quaintly pretty air of the lavender song, "Who'll buy my pretty lavender. Sixteen spikes for a penny?" will be the most popular street song for the next few weeks, says a London newspaper. "When the lavender comes the season is over," we are told, and those who have dined and danced and gambled through the last three months will be well satisfied that this should be so, now the "dog days" are upon us.

Darkness Changes Flowers.
The influence of darkness on flowers has been a subject of experiment in France. The flowers opened later than in sunlight, and the color was generally less intense, the loss of color being slight in some species, but almost complete in others. The flowers are usually smaller in size and weight. The pedicels, however, sometimes increase in darkness, and in some rare cases the gain of the peduncles counterbalances the loss in the rest of the plant.

Author of Quo Vadis Popular.
The Pope recently sent Sienkiewicz, the author of "Quo Vadis," which was so well liked at the Vatican, a marble tablet of the time of the Emperor Constantine, recently found in the Ostrian Cemetery.

A TRYING
POSITIONJanesville Readers
Will Appreciate
This Advice.

A constant itching tries your patience. Nothing so annoying. Nothing so irritating as itching piles or eczema. To scratch the irritation makes it worse, to leave it alone means misery. Some citizens can tell you how to be free from these troubles. Read the following:

Mr. L. Lawrence, of 408 S. Franklin St., engineer at the Janesville Electric Light Co., says: "I tried about everything recommended for itching of the skin, but found nothing to give me relief until I struck Doan's Ointment at the People's drug store. I had an affection of the skin on my face caused from the burning oil about the engine and dynamo. My face itched and annoyed me, and rubbing it only made it worse and made it sore. I could hardly stand shaving, for the skin broke and bled. A few applications of Doan's Ointment removed the itching and healed up my face in a few days. I would not be without this remedy in my house, and I certainly recommend it to others in need of such a preparation."

Sold for 50 cents per box by all dealers. Foster-Wilburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Also on sale at King's Pharmacy.

Remember the name, "Doan's," and take no other.

HAVE YOU SEEN HER?

Mrs. Ethereal is daily proving to the most skeptical of Janesville that she can do all that she claims. All she asks is to be given a trial and satisfaction is assured. There are ladies of this city who do not care to have their name brought before the public who claim wonderful results from only two treatments. Mrs. Ethereal don't treat everything, but cures all she treats. She removes wrinkles, superfluous hair, warts, moles, etc. by electrolysis and other scientific processes. She treats the scalp for dandruff and falling hair. Give her a trial today, as procrastination is the thief of time. Hair dressing and manicuring parlors in connection. Rooms 224-226 Hayes Block Wis. she grew hopeful and was even a little enthusiastic as they left the house. When they reached the dock, they found quite a large number of Brothers assembled, and Mrs. Bowser was somewhat astonished at the dress and manners of most of them. It was a "horsy" crowd, as near as she could make out, and several men had prepared for the day by taking several drinks. There were a few women, but they did not greet each other in a "sisterly" way. A number of men slapped Mr. Bowser on the back and called him old man, and before the boat came along there was a little row in which one Gentle Brother hit another on the nose, but Mrs. Bowser didn't see any way to get out of it unless she fell dead.

For the first half hour after the boat got away the Gentle Brothers were fairly gentle with each other. They had to be. The boat was so crowded that they couldn't get free play for the elbows. It was only after a number of them fell asleep and were corded up between decks that the others began to enjoy the day. As Mr. Bowser had predicted, a fraternal spirit prevailed. It was so fraternal that the Brothers knocked his hat off, walked on his feet, offered him 3 cent cigars and called him "Old Humpty." They needed no introduction to Mrs. Bowser, and they could not understand why she was so constrained and retiring when they asked her to waltz to the walls of a conthey regretted that there had been any misunderstanding, but the majority of them declared that Mr. Bowser ought to have been ducked twice. He had been made a G. B. on his declaration that he could jump nine feet high, but had stubbornly refused to jump at all.

As the steamer landed the remains were placed in a carriage and driven home. They rallied and got out and walked into the house on their own legs, and as Mrs. Bowser followed she found them seated on the family lounge. They glared at her and menaced and tried to speak, but no word came. She sat down and cried for five minutes and then got up to bring the amica and bandages, and the cat looked on and felt that a shadow had fallen upon a once happy home to blight it forever.

SNEERING SMILE BY EMMA GOLDMAN

Short Look of Triumph When News of Death of McKinley Was Announced.

Chicago, September 14.—A sneering smile appeared on Emma Goldman's face last evening when she looked out of her window at the Harrison street police station and saw the flag over the custom house raised at half-mast, announcing, prematurely, the death of the president. The policemen uncovered their heads, tears came to the matron's eyes, and even the prisoners in their cells showed their sorrow when told the supposed news. Emma Goldman, however, after her short look of triumph, was perfectly impassive, except that her face assumed a hard look and she compressed her lips as she talked to the group about her.

"Father in heaven, Miss Goldman," said Matron Keegan, "the President is dead. Look at his flag and weep."

"Suppose he is dead," replied the high priestess of anarchy. "Thousands die daily and are unwept. Why should I mourn?"

About 6:15 p. m. a man hatless and breathless, ran out of the Milburn house, dashed across the street to the telegraph tent of the Western Union company with all the speed at his command. Gas Jet Intended to Be Blown Out.

THE FRENCHWOMAN'S CHIC.

How, Whether She Is Rich or Poor, She Manages to Obtain It.

We may deny the beauty of the Frenchwoman and speak of her sallow complexion as compared with that of the American girl, but we can't deny that she is one of the most graceful and well dressed bit of femininity in existence. There is something indescribable about the gown of the Parisienne, something which we look for in vain elsewhere. Yet these same gowns when seen away from her dainty person are often plain in the extreme and would attract no attention whatever if worn by any one of another nationality.

The Frenchwoman from her very girlhood studies herself. She finds out which colors, even which shades of certain colors, flatter or bring out her principal characteristics in the way of complexion, hair, etc. She has things even down to a finer point. She finds out what tints she should adopt when she is in certain moods, when she is surrounded by the glare of electric lights, in the bright sunlight or under gray clouded skies, and so sympathetic is her taste that she never wears the wrong shade at the wrong time.

Next she studies her figure; more than that, she cultivates it, not by lacing it unmercifully, as would her American and English sisters, but by having specially made corsets and carefully fitted lingerie which artfully conceal its bad points and bring out its good ones. She discovers by these means what lines are flattering to her, and she is faithful to them.

It is the same with the perfume she uses and her method of hairdressing. She finds out what is most suitable to her and adopts it regardless of changing fads and fancies.

They have a saying on the other side that an American girl will buy anything if it looks pretty. How many times have you yourselves heard women in the shopping district remark: "Oh, isn't that sweet? Don't you suppose I could wear it?" That's just the difference. The Frenchwoman never tries to force things. She knows immediately whether a thing is "her style," and if it is not she doesn't even waste time looking at it.
